

Inscribe. Reuse. Rewrite. Fragments of Brythonic identity from Welsh inscriptions (V-IX c.)

Donato Sitaro (Tübingen)

- Roman Wales and its civitates

Figura 1 Roman Wales (W. Davies, Wales in the Early Middle Ages, 86).

- Early Medieval Welsh kingdoms

Figura 2 Early medieval Welsh kingdoms (W. Davies, Wales in the Early Middle Ages, 91).

- The Pillar of Eliseg (N. Edwards, Rethinking the Pillar of Eliseg, 172)

«+ Concenn filius Cattell Cattell / filius Brohcmal Brohcmal filius / Eliseg Eliseg filius Guoillauc + Concenn itaque pronepos Eliseg / edificauit hunc lapidem proauo / suo Eliseg + Ipse est Eliseg qui nec / xit(?) hereditatem Pouos mort / c autem(?) per uim e potestate Anglo / [rum] in gladio suo parta in igne / [+ Quicu]mque recit(a)uerit manescr[i]p / [tum] y m det benedictionem supe / [r animam] Eliseg / + Ipse est Concenn / ... .. manu / ... .. e ad regnum suum Pouos /... .. et quod / ... .. montem / ... .. monarchiam /... .. ail Maximus Britanniae /... nn Pascen[t] y Mau[n] Annan /... Britu a[u]t[e]m filius Guarthi / [girn] que(m) bened[ixit] Germanus que(m) peperit ei Se[v]ira filia Maximi / [re]gis qui occidit regem Romano / rum + Conmarch pinxit hoc / chirografu(m) rege suo poscente / Concenn / + Benedictio d(omi)ni in Concenn et s(imilite)r(?) i(n) tota familia eius / et in(?) tota ragione(m?) Pouois / usque in ...».